-- The MAILING DATE of this communication appears on the cover sheet with the correspondence address --

Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-4, 7-9, 11, 12, 17, and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Mackay (6655459).

Mackay discloses a casing shoe 100 comprising: a body 110 having an internal recess 132 and a passage 123; a cover 131 mounted over the recess to protect the recess from debris accumulation resulting from cementing the body downhole; the cover removable (col. 5, line 40) subsequent to cementing of the body to expose the recess; the cover sealed to the body to define an enclosed annular space 132 adjacent the recess; the annular space contains a loosely packed incompressible material 122; a tubular 210 inserted through the shoe after removal of the cover for attachment to the recess; the tubular attached to the recess by expansion (figure 4); and the body having a drift diameter outside of the recess and the tubular, after expansion into the recess, at least as large as the drift diameter in the shoe outside of the recess (figure 8).

This reference also discloses a well completion method comprising: running in a tubular 101 having a shoe 120 at its lower end; providing a sleeve 131 to cover a recess in the shoe; cementing the tubular downhole; removing the sleeve after the cementing to expose the recess (col. 5, line 40); creating a sealed annular space 132 around the recess with the sleeve; inserting a tubular string 210 after removal of the sleeve; expanding the tubular string into the recess for support (figure 4); and providing a drift diameter for the tubular string, after the expansion, at least as large as the drift diameter of the shoe outside of the recess (figure 8).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 5, 6, 10, 13-16, 19, and 20 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Burtner et al. (6843322) and Hebert et al. (6845820) present minimizing debris at a connection.
